OVER DIRECTOR OF PLAY

An irresistible force met an immovable body in the Essanay studios in Chicago the other way is a Chicago the other way in the control of the able body in the Essanay studios in Chicago the other morning. J. Charles Haydon, who is directing Edna Mayo and Henry B. Walthall in "The Strange Case of Mary Page," asked Miss Mayo to report at 3 o'clock that afternoon. A moment later Lady Duff Gordon (Lucile) telegraphed from New York asking Miss Mayo to report at 11 o'clock the next morning to try on gowns that are being made for the "Mary Page" production.

The question had to be decided right there, whether a director has more authority than a modiste.

The next morning at 11 Miss Mayo was in New York 'saying, "Good morning Lady Duff Gordon," or, however, it is that one addresses Lady Duff Gordon.

Haydon was in Chicago saying something quite different.

Doesn't she make her home in California"—Agnes D. Marguerite Snow is now living in New York City, where she is at work on Quality-Metro features. Her last feature, "Rosemary," was made in Holywood, Cal., at the Quality-Metro studio there.
